

The email address should be a clickable mailto link built by creating a plugin within the cell. And Robin's job title should be on a separate line to his name. In the third row, we use the newer and easier table cell properties "href" and "destination".

This should be a 5x5 table where some ranges span. Note that the grid and background commands still work on the "underlying" grid; if you grid the whole table, it will show through your 'spanned cells'

This should span the first 3 cells in the top row. It's ordinary left aligned text but could be centred if you want.			D	This should span all five cells in the right column. We vertically centred the text to make it look sensible using a separate stylesheet command. some more text

This should be a 5x5 table where some ranges span. The column widths have been set as 3cm,10%,10%,10%,30%. The percentage refers to unallocated width only.

This shows some pointers on doing financial tables. It demonstrates the decimal alignment and multiple lines. We also used a local `<td color="red">` attribute for the negative cell; ideally one wants to make the data drive the colour, so that generator apps don't need to make para tags in every cell if they want red negatives. If we move to dynamic RML, then a number-and-cell-formatting function is possible, but static RML sees everything as text. Note that when the value does not contain the decimal character but there are non-digit characters at the end, it tries to align the rightmost digits with other rows.
